

Aspire to Lead
The PwC women's leadership series
#pwcaspire

Hello,

The Accountancy Faculty of the Weatherhead School of Management are excited to invite you to a very special global webcast that will broadcast live from London, Friday, February 27, 12:30pm ET. AT Noon Pizza will be served! The event is part of “Aspire to Lead: The PwC women’s leadership series,” which includes programs and workshops hosted by PwC to help college students build leadership skills.

PwC leaders, Google UK Leader Eileen Naughton, and authors of The Confidence Code, Katty Kay and Claire Shipman will be part of a discussion that focuses on the theme: “The Confidence to Lead.” The webcast will provide tips on building confidence as a leader. In addition, the webcast will explore PwC’s partnership with HeForShe and engage men in the movement. The event will conclude with a Q&A session, and a video replay will be available immediately after the webcast on pwc.to/aspireus.

Following the webcast, we’ll examine the speakers’ views and experiences, and will engage in a discussion around the key takeaways. It’s a topic that’s sure to result in lively conversation, and we look forward to having you participate in the dialogue.

Date: Friday February 27
Location: PBL 02
Time: 12:30pm Webcast begins- Please arrive 30 minutes early if you want Pizza
Event details: Lunch will be provided

If you can't attend in person, I hope you'll tune into the webcast by registering on pwc.to/aspireus. You can read more about PwC's commitment to developing the next generation of women leaders on our Diversity and Inclusion website.

PwC’s Aspire to Lead series provides valuable insights that will help you accelerate your development during this critical time in your personal and professional life. Be sure to take advantage of the series’ workshops and resources, and I encourage you to join our event or watch the webcast!

Sarah Leiby of PwC will moderate the webcast and Dave Jones will be her host!